

Dale Gordon <omega2221@gmail.com> Mar 2, 2019, 3:54 PM (8 hours ago)
to Shamah

I'm just going to write a quick email. Just wanted to let you know the beginning of the end is probably Rosh Hashana or sooner this year. Really the fall feast have not been fulfilled yet except Sukkot I think.

Things may start happening this spring and perhaps real soon. It all depends on God the Father and his set time. God will one day arise and have mercy.

There is an appointed time to all things but the fall feasts have not been fulfilled yet. We might have to wait till summer. I see verses happening this year but I have no proof. I have a lot of dreams from God but it is more than that. The Bible is hard to read though ancient Bibles explain more especially original tongues. I study very deep into scripture though it doesn't make me right. Maybe it is godly wisdom I don't know but things could happen this month though I don't know what or the if factor. I just know there is a time for everything under the sun. I really doubt that things will happen this month over a few weeks. I think that but don't have proof. Sorry about the misspelling I'm not used to this new keyboard but I know what I am saying. There is a lot in Daniel 11 about the end and that it happens at Certain Times. It is all about to happen just know it is all in God's perfect time. My mom always told me "in his own time and in his own way." None of us but the Father no the day and time. That time is perhaps over the next few weeks. Jesus doesn't even know the times. He believes in the Great Tribulation. Things will come to pass and we will rest. I told you all about how I feel about end days.

your lover, Dale